OVERVIEW

The Pianoforte Table, part of the Una Mater collection, is a handcrafted table made with reclaimed copper, showing how the same design can take on a different identity through its materials. Its marine plywood structure is clad in old copper sheets recovered from the roof drainage system of a country house in the province of Pistoia. Two turquoise central gutters contrast with side sections that shift from red to green. The oxidation patterns, shaped by water and time, belong to those specific sheets and make the photographed piece impossible to reproduce exactly.
